Airport project scope change approved

Project overcomes final government hurdle

Lisa Harrison
 Special to the Times

The last senior government hurdle has been crossed by Algonquin Highlands in the move to bring the Ministry of Natural Resources' (MNR) fire management headquarters to the Haliburton/Stanhope Airport.

Reeve Carol Moffat confirmed the township has received approval from both the federal and provincial governments for a change in scope to a Building Canada Fund grant of $3.7 million.

The grant had been received by the prior council to create a new 4,000-foot cross-wind runway at the airport. The federal, provincial and municipal governments are each responsible for one-third of the funding.

Approximately $500,000 of those funds was spent in 2010 to rehabilitate the existing runway as approved in the original grant application.

The scope change means the township can now apply the remaining funds to preparing the airport lands for the MNR move from Haliburton, including tree-clearing and demolition or relocation/reconstruction of the existing T-hangar.

Council passed the bylaw authorizing the MNR agreement in November.

Minden man charged with possession

On Dec. 17 OPP officers conducted a R.I.D.E. check at County Road 21 and County Road 1.

Officers stopped a vehicle in the check area and as a result of an investigation, the driver was arrested for possession of controlled substance.

Officers discovered approximately one kilogram of marijuana in the vehicle.

A 25 year-old man from Minden Hills was charged with Possession for the Purpose of Trafficking and is scheduled to appear in the Ontario Court of Justice in Minden on Feb. 5, 2014.

Rotary Clubs empower YWCA

The Minden and Haliburton Rotary Clubs have donated more than $400 worth of gift cards for local businesses to the YWCA Women's Centre of Haliburton County. The gift cards were donated by members and attendees of the Rotary Club's annual Christmas dinner. YWCA office manager Daisy Downs says the cards empower YWCA clients to make their own gift choices for their families. ## County could see expenses for Pan Am Games

Lisa Harrison
Special to the Echo

The unique support requirements for the Toronto 2015 Pan and Para-Pan American Games in Minden will "necessitate flexible thinking and cooperative action on the part of Games planning partners."

They will also mean expenses for the county, reported Pat Kennedy, county director of emergency services.

The Minden Wild Water Preserve is one of 109 participating venues and facilities across the Greater Toronto Area and surrounding municipalities. Athletes in the whitewater canoe/kayak events are scheduled to train at the preserve from July 13 to 17 and compete on July 18 and 19, 2015.

While Minden Hills is primarily responsible for development, planning and delivery of services associated with the games, the county is providing support through public works, emergency medical services and emergency management. This includes developing a transportation plan, developing consequence management plans, identifying hazards and assessing risk, providing on-site emergency medical services at the athletes' village and the preserve, and providing social services (evacuation and reception) as part of the County Emergency Management Program.

As well, the county's tourism department "will be exploring various opportunities to market the area to the national and international media, athletes and visitors attending the Games and the event" at the preserve, Kennedy reported.

A working group formed to develop the transportation plan for the preserve events will meet in mid-January to begin the process of developing the initial draft.

Kennedy said he expects the "hard costs" of providing emergency medical services at the athletes village and the event site will be covered, but other costs such as attendance at numerous meetings will not.

The games made news recently as the chief executive officer, Ian Troop, was dismissed and replaced by Saad Rafi, Ontario's Deputy Minister of Health. According to the official Games website, capital projects are on time and on or under budget and the board of directors wishes Troop well. Rafi will assume the CEO role on Jan. 6.

"We don't anticipate any fallout locally" from the changeover, said Kennedy.

The Pan Am Games will take place from July 10 to 26 and the Parapan Am Games will be held from Aug. 7 to 14, 2015. The games will feature approximately 10,000 athletes, coaches and officials from 41 countries in North, Central and South America, and the Caribbean. They are being billed as the largest multi-sport event ever hosted in Canada, Kennedy said.

Burton elected county warden

Matthew Desrosiers

Editor

Haliburton County's new warden for 2014 is coming out of Highlands East.

Dave Burton, Highlands East reeve, was named warden during a special meeting of county council on Dec. 17. He replaces Algonquin Highlands reeve Carol Moffatt in the role.

Rev. Bev Hicks began the meeting with a prayer and message for county councillors as they move forward into 2014.

"I'd like to begin tonight by reflecting on the spring disaster which took place back in April," he said. "On a couple of occasions I heard it referred to as an act of God. There was an act of God, but it wasn't in the disaster itself."

Rev. Hicks said the way the county's communities came together to support one another after the flood was the real act of God during the disaster.

"It shows the heart of the people in this county, and the character of the people is also a reflection of the leadership that this county has," he said. "Count it as a blessing, an honour, and a privilege to be able to govern and lead the people of this county."

After the prayer, Highlands East deputy-reeve Suzanne Partridge put forth her nomination for Burton.

"In the past three years, I've been really pleased and impressed with the leadership Dave [Burton] has shown in Highlands East and the vision he's had in our communities," she said. "I hope he can bring that to county council."

Dysart et al deputy-reeve Bill Davis seconded the nomination, and Burton won his seat by acclamation.

In his speech, Burton acknowledged the past warden's work in the county.

"Carol [Moffatt], you've had a very successful year," he said. "I look forward to working with you, and I look forward to your support. You've certainly raised the bar here and thank you for doing that."

Burton said his role as warden will be to build his team and use their strengths to tackle issues that are important to the county.

"Consulting and working with lower tiers is so important, addressing and tackling OPP costs," he said. "That's something that's really going to put us behind the eight-ball if we don't."

County council will continue to push the issue, along with support from the Association of Municipalities of Ontario (AMO) and the Warden's Caucus, he said.

Other issues Burton identified were collaborating with the Trent-Severn Waterway to protect the county's interests, identifying efficiencies in existing systems so the county can do more with less, and continuing to develop the county's tourism and marketing strategies.

"There are a number of issues out there," he said. "They're complex, [but] I believe the solutions are here. We have the experience around this table, we have the technology, we have the knowledge, and we certainly have the willpower to move forward."

"I'm going to make a pledge that I will bring all my best efforts forward, but I'll need you [councillors] to bring all your best efforts to me."

"SORRY I ATE THE COOKIES LAST YEAR"

It's been a busy week

ON MONDAY, The Highlander joined forces with the Haliburton Echo and Minden Times, plus Bancroft This Week and Barry's Bay This Week, under the banner of Maple Key Media.

Our first objective is to get all our publications operating smoothly. Any time you combine businesses, especially when transferring from a large corporation to a small company, there will be unforeseen bumps in the road. The technical challenge of returning production, distribution, ad design, layout, subscriptions and many other functions to the Echo building on Highland Street is huge. We will have some glitches, make some mistakes, and we ask for your patience during the process. I'd like to thank Sun Media for their gracious assistance during this transition.

The Haliburton Echo, Minden Times and The Highlander will continue to cover the institutions and people you care about: our hospitals, schools, town councils, non-profits, events and small businesses. We will be able to expand our reporting of county news, arts and entertainment and the environment, as well as coverage of Algonquin Highlands and Highlands East. Additional effort will be put into stories and features that engage our summer population with our communities and economy.

If the word monopoly has come to mind, I understand. I hate monopolies too. But the opposite of monopoly is a market in which there must be winners and losers. In the newspaper industry, this has meant extreme competition and, for those who work in journalism, not a high level of job security. By consolidating these papers, we are ensuring that they can continue. Every employee formerly with Sun Media has been offered a position with Maple Key. Our employees will have greater certainty in their futures, and the community in the ability of its papers to provide complete and accurate coverage.

Our clients will always have choices - two outstanding radio stations among them and a variety of speciality publications - we cannot, and will not, ever take them for granted.

The payoff of course will be that our local newspapers will be designed and put together right here in Haliburton. We'll be better able to handle your last-minute changes, create papers with personalities that reflect our communities, and our clients will know that their ad dollars are continuing to support local jobs and are being recycled into the local economy.

This was not an easy or obvious decision for me. The opportunity was presented relatively recently, and my options were to leave the former-Sun Media papers to an uncertain future; or, to take a leap of faith and ensure that all the papers, and all their employees, remain part of this community. It was not something I had anticipated or tried to effect.

Change in a small community is never easy; resilience is what holds us together. The ownership of these papers may have changed, but their purpose and commitment to the community will continue and grow. We will continue to fight for the issues important to our readers, to support local businesses, to sponsor organizations and events, to stand up for rural values, to help charities raise funds and to provide our communities with comprehensive and quality coverage of the people and events that matter to us here.

And here is what this is about. I moved here permanently only five years ago. In that short time, I have made more friends, had more positive experiences and more fulfillment through volunteerism than in the previous 40. My days are filled seeing hard-working, upstanding, passionate people who also love the Highlands, and it is an existence for which I am incredibly grateful. I am also grateful for the acceptance this community has shown, not just to me but to the thousands of people who live here, a diversity of talents and traits I've never seen anywhere else.

I realize this is an awesome responsibility. The Echo will celebrate its 130th birthday in 2014. It is one of the most award-winning community newspapers in Canada with a venerable history. That is a tradition we should all want to see continue. To succeed, we must maintain your trust and the trust of the business community. Our prices will remain unchanged in 2014; our sponsorships and support to non-profit organizations will expand, starting with increasing the Echo/Times non-profit discount to match that of The Highlander.

The Highlander staff have been outstanding in helping manage the chaos of the last few days and in building that paper to where it is now. Most of all, I'd like to thank the staff of the Echo, Times, Bancroft and Barry's Bay. This is very difficult for them, and their enthusiasm and willingness to accept the future with open minds is highly impressive. It speaks to the hard work and strength of character that built these publications into trusted touchstones.

We are sorry that Jenn Watt and Chad Ingram have decided not to join us. Both are talented journalists who have contributed immensely to the community and that contribution will be missed by our readers. We were looking forward to their help in this transition and with taking the Echo and Times forward. It was, however, their decision alone and we respect that. Steve Galea has also decided not to participate, meaning a few less chuckles every week for now. We wish all of them the very best and thank them for the respect and affection they have earned for their papers from so many of our readers.

This will be my last column for the foreseeable future. I think you've heard enough from me and my focus has to be on managing the business of the papers. I've very much appreciated your feedback and encouragement and know that our editors will continue to provide interesting and provocative opinions. I didn't expect to go out with a last column about saucer-ears, but there you go: the future tends to be unpredictable.

And so it is.

points of view

Thanks to our Echo friends

To the Editor,

Some of us know them personally, and some of us know them through the information and ideas they offer every week. Jenn Watt, Steve Galea and Chad Ingram left the Echo when it changed hands last week. Change seems to happen a lot quicker these days than it once did, and the changes to our 120 year old local paper had the rumours on Highland Street flying. As the dust settles on a whole new media organization called Maple Key Media, we owe a nod of recognition to the journalists we will miss.

They didn't have time to write a "so long, it's been good to know ya" piece. Jenn Watt's last editorial was about saving for retirement. Not that Jenn will retire. Martha Perkins, former Echo editor, says it best on a social media site.

"We hope everyone realizes what a wise, ethical and dedicated steward of the newspapers you have been. You are such a talented journalist who gave a lot of herself. We are grateful for and proud of what you've achieved. We now wish you nothing but success as you move forward."

Steve's last column was about household drama when worlds collide in the laundry room. His columns connected us with nature in fun and serious ways, and his comical summer hijinks with the summer interns brought many smiles to my household.

On Dec. 10, Chad's editorial in the Minden Times was about the current "unstable job market." He attended a lot of local meetings on our behalf, and reported on the municipality in a concise, knowledgeable way.

Thanks to Jenn, Steve and Chad. Keep in touch.

Hanging up the phone

To the Editor,

Well I am finally hanging up the phone at Curry Chevrolet. After over thirty-three years I feel it is time.

I want to thank Curry Motors and Curry Chevrolet for putting up with me. Most of all I want to thank Len Salvatori for his guidance while working for him.

I have met a lot of wonderful customers over the years and I will certainly miss them. It will be quite a change for me but I know I can handle it.

I would like to wish everyone a Merry Christmas and a happy and healthy 2014.

Thanks and God bless,

Dancing with Joseph and Mary

PARKAS AND FUR hats make a fashion statement in the candle-lit dimness of the old Presbyterian Church, and the spirit of Christmas keeps us warm together.

"Silver bells," sing Wendy Connelly and Wendy Ladurantaye. "Silver bells, it's Christmas time in the country."

In the country, not the city, and two volunteer baritones just behind us stumble, caught off-guard by the two Wendys.

My wife, Sandy Valentine, and I might be the only outsiders in the tiny Twelve-Mile Lake Church on a Saturday night, but that hardly matters, for this is Christmas and there are no real outsiders.

A generator keeps us warm enough in our parkas and provides just enough light to help the fat candles on each window sill hold back the darkness as we sing along.

Barb Varty plays an organ that has been in the church for more than a century. Chambers and Russell family members are there, just as they have been since they helped build the church 123 years ago.

Which is what Christmas is all about in this old church, its denomination now merely historical. A Friend of the Twelve Mile Lake Historical Church helps us up a tricky step and inside we sing:

The First Noel. It Came Upon The Midnight Clear. I Hear The Bells. Oh Christmas Tree. Joy To The World. Hark The Herald Angels Sing. Silent Night. God Rest Ye Merry Gentlemen. We Wish You A Merry Christmas.

The good old songs. Religion may be the pretext, but the season is for families, for friends that feel like family. The evening ends with Auld Lang Syne. Surely Jesus would approve.

We step out into a star-spangled night, watch headlights blink on, one pair at a time. Tires crunch through snow. Neighbours walk home in moonlight, just as they might have 123 years ago.

Cold days and colder nights, whiter than white. Snowflakes speckle the blackness. A perfect December spun out of fantasy and plunked down into reality.

The Brown Dog Jiggs has been out looking for Jimmy Stewart. There must be an angel somewhere. Minden in costume as Bedford Falls. It's a wonderful life.

Friends and family wrap gifts for Sandy and her pals at Hyland Crest, her nursing home. My thick, fumbling fingers tape fancy balls to gift bags.

Time given is a gift received.

Time lived in a little town is the best gift of all. Sue Sisson is in charge of the wrapping. Job done, we run into one another again at the post office, then at the drug store.

"Where are you going next?" I ask her. "Maybe I should go there, too."

A chat with John Kellett at the grocery, politics with Gary George at Tim's, several more hellos, friendly grins and the afternoon is all but gone. One of the Prentices - I'm never sure which - honks and so does Boomer Stamp.

One night at Hyland Crest, four churches team up for a rejoicing that threatens to make an anti-climax of my 25th. Love is in the air. Max Ward passes out cookies. The Brown Dog Jiggs watches hopefully. A gift for every resident from the churches.

Sister Act, a gang of Anglican parishioners dolled up as nuns, urged on by Joan Cavanaugh, injects the sacred into pop songs, rocking too much to be real nuns.

A pint-sized Joseph (Easton Burk) and Mary (Ruby Andrews) tend to the manger. Beth Johns fiddles Christmas in Killarney when she's not directing

Back of Beyond

The Outloud Womyn Voices.

The Womyn are moved by their own music. Now Sharon Harrison is out front, circle-dancing with Joseph and Mary till Mary steps away to scoop up the precious babe and rock him in her arms.

On Sapsucker Ridge, these nights are perfectly still. I break trail for The Brown Dog, who meanders off to do his business, scoops up mouthfuls of snow as though it were ice cream, muzzle nuzzles my knee.

My seventy Christmases, still all present and accounted for. Sunday school concerts, stockings hung with care, two kinds of hard sauce, toy tractors and Meccano sets. Old stories told so often the listener corrects the teller's fabrications.

Once a nephew, now an uncle. Once a grandchild, now a grandfather. All of life on a single stage, memories mingled in a Christmas tapestry, time past still present forever.

And now, this place, these friends that feel like family. This Minden.

Walls come down at new Places for People home

Angelica Blenich
Staff reporter

The walls are coming down and the garage is no more at 5 Newcastle St., the most recent acquisition by Places for People Haliburton County (P4P).

There was a sense of pride and excitement within the single-family dwelling on Dec. 18, as volunteers worked together to demolish the inside of the property which will be converted into a family home come spring.

The not-for-profit affordable housing organization took possession of the house this week, said Terry Twine, chairman of the property committee and a member of the P4P board of directors.

"The papers were signed this week," said Twine. "We had been in negotiations with the previous owner ... and here we are."

The house is the third property acquired by Places for People in Haliburton County, the first in Haliburton and the other in Caruaron.

About a dozen volunteers were on hand on Wednesday to help with the first day of demolition.

The organization hopes to have the house converted over the winter months and ready for a family to move in by April 1.

Measuring just over 1,000 square-feet, the residence will be renovated by Places for People and transformed into a three bedroom house, said Twine.

The organization is currently accepting applications from those interested in moving into the house through their website, www.placesforpeople.ca.

Places for People will begin interviewing applicants in the new year, said Norris Turner, chairman of the tenant selection and

County council puts off sending letter to TSW

► MP Barry Devolin has scheduled meeting to take place in January

Lisa Harrison
Special to the Times

A county letter to the Honourable Leona Aglukkaq, Minister of the Environment, regarding the Trent-Severn Waterway (TSW) has been delayed into the new year.

The letter will request a meeting with the minister, new to her portfolio, to ensure she fully understands the concerns of county municipalities over how water level decisions are made in order to help avoid a repeat of this year's spring flooding in 2014.

Local MP Barry Devolin has tentatively scheduled a meeting Jan. 9 to discuss the topic, according to county councillor Carol Moffatt.

Devolin has pledged to make TSW management his primary project during his final years in office.

Moffatt told fellow councillors Devolin is inviting the four county reeves as well as representatives from the Federation of Ontario Cottagers' Associations, the Coalition for Equitable Water Flow and other interested groups.

Councillors agreed with Moffatt's recommendation that council delay sending the letter until after the meeting in order to have that context as background.

Remembrance Day

Remembrance Day is about remembering all of the Canadians that died or have families that went through all of the wars that we have gone through. Remembrance Day happens every year on November 11th. This is a very important day because of all of the people that died were protecting us Canadians.

The wars that Canadians went through killed a lot of people. But some lived. Remembrance Day reminds us to be very kind to our veterans because they either went through the war and lived, or had a close family member go through the war. This must have been very hard for them.

Also, it is very respectful to wear a poppy on Remembrance Day because it is like a symbol to remember all of the people that died during wars. So, if you would like to be polite and respectful on Remembrance Day, wear a poppy.

When our veterans need help, our Royal Canadian Legions give them money when needed. The legions also help keep Remembrance Day going, such as getting involved in all our Remembrance Day parades, so we need to thank them for their work.

Remembering Christmases past means often remembering those who were so much part of earlier celebrations. Unless directly summoned, today will be a good one for me to stay clear of the kitchen. Bruce's dad, besides being the ultimate grandpa, was an amazing candy maker and every Christmas his gifts of mouth-watering treats were shared with colleagues, family and friends.

Along with physical stature, hair and eye colour, there must be a genetic link to this special talent for the holidays because it would not be complete without our children receiving their decorated tin of maple cream. Named for three American presidents Addison, Garfield, Fleury, simply known as Wilkie, served overseas in WW2 with the 48th Highlanders of Canada. This year on Remembrance Day Bruce, while re-reading "Dileas" [faithful] the history of that proud regiment from 1929 - 1956, happened to check the index. There singled out for commendation was one Pte. "Hardrock" Fleury, a nickname given to this skilled defence player by his hockey teammates on the Aurora Bears and Toronto Marlies. Wilkie's early work experience as a shoemaker apparently made him invaluable as he repaired the damage done to rain-soaked boots in England broken down from constant marching. His skill in superbly refitting the soldiers' boots was credited for resulting in shorter sick parades. He is much missed and lovingly remembered.

This will be the last column of 2013 and with it a reminder of the New Year's Eve Pot Luck House Party Dec. 31 at the Royal Canadian Legion Branch 441 Kinmount starting at 8 p.m. There will be a variety of activities to choose from including darts, shuffleboard, hockey on the big screen TV and dancing to your musical favourites. Please note that this is an age of majority event. There is no admission charge but do bring along your darts, CDs and favourite potluck dish.

The several area groups who enjoy weekly cards and shuffleboard are taking a holiday break returning to regular schedules in early January. I report those scores weekly but this is only made possible because of the faithful recorders who call them in on behalf of their group. It is important to recognize that while the common interest in an activity, be it euchre, bridge or shuffleboard, serves to bring people together, the wider benefits of friendship and support extend far beyond. The same can be said of all our community groups. Thank you again to all those individuals who volunteered their time and talents to enrich our rural lifestyle in 2013 and will continue to do so in the coming New Year. The card groups do welcome new players and if interested in contact information give me a call.

So to end with some trivia for holiday gathering chats, the top choices of names for babies born in 2013 were Olivia and Liam. As for Google searches in Canada the number one spot went to none other than Toronto's mayor Rob Ford.

Merry Christmas and happy new year.

First steps provides intro to snowshoeing

The first hike is called "First Steps" on Tuesday Jan. 21 from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and the second is called "A Heritage Walk" on Tuesday, Jan. 28 from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

First steps will give you a step up on winter with this introduction to snowshoeing including types, techniques, and winter travel tips. You will then walk the talk and wilderness trails at the Frost Centre. Your guide will be Heather Reid, an experienced hiker and outdoor enthusiast.

A Heritage Walk will take you back into Canada's history and to insights into traditional snowshoeing, winter travel and give you a chance to see a remarkable collection of heritage snowshoes. You will walk with Craig MacDonald, historian and outdoor recreation specialist from Algonquin Park.

Snowshoes are provided or bring your own. Space is limited and as mentioned, advanced registration is required. The cost is $30 for the six-week session or $5 per hike. These programs are being subsidized by the Government of Ontario.

The 4-week session of cross-country ski instruction will take place on Thursdays, February 6 to 27 from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Equipment is available or bring your own.

Space is limited and advanced registration is required. The cost is $20 for the four-week session, also subsidized by a grant from the Government of Ontario.

Don't fall victim to the holiday heart attack

It's a sobering reality amid the holiday cheer: more people die from a heart attack or stroke in the winter months than during warmer weather, with mortality rates averaging 10 per cent higher. For older Canadians, the danger is even greater. Plus, cold weather is associated with increased blood pressure, which in turn raises your risk of heart disease and stroke.

You can reduce your risk of heart disease and stroke by making healthy choices any time of the year – eating well, being physically active, managing your stress, limiting alcohol and being smoke free. But, of course, that can be especially difficult this season, with its whirl of social demands, temptations – and stress.

"Maintaining healthy habits through the holidays is a challenge, but it's so important," says Heart and Stroke Foundation registered dietitian Carol Dombrow. "With a little planning and mindfulness, you can find a healthy balance and still enjoy the season."

These tips will help you have a healthier holiday.

Eat for balance

Sugary, high fat and high calorie temptations are everywhere. To keep up your energy and get all the nutrients you need, limit treats and choose foods from all four food groups.

Snack before parties

Eating a protein-rich snack before a holiday party will help you stay fuller and say no to salty and sugary bites.

Keep indulgences small

With all the sweet treats on offer over the holidays, you can still enjoy your favourites by keeping portions small.

Stay active

Regular physical activity boosts feel-good endorphins that help you manage stress. Winter sports like skating, tobogganing and skiing are a great way to make the most of the season. Prefer to stay warm? Consider indoor swimming or melt stress away with a yoga class.

Hit the snooze button

Shortchanging yourself on sleep can you leave you feeling cranky, raise blood pressure levels and even lead to overeating. Stay refreshed during the holidays by logging eight hours a night.

Sip smart

Whether you're drinking a glass of wine or a cup of frothy eggnog, it's easy to over-consume alcohol during the holidays. "Heavy drinking is a risk factor for high blood pressure and stroke," says Dombrow. For men, limit alcohol intake to three drinks per day, to a weekly maximum of 15. Women should limit themselves to two drinks per day or to a maximum of 10 a week. One drink equals 12 ounces of beer, five ounces of wine, or 1.5 ounces of spirits. And remember that alcohol is also high in calories.

Ask for help

If you feel lonely or isolated during the holidays, seek out support from your friends, community, or place of worship. Take time to recognize and share your feelings with others.

Keep it real

Without a big budget movie crew, it's almost impossible to create a picture-perfect holiday dinner. Give yourself a break. Perfect may be unreachable but enjoyable is well within your grasp if you set realistic goals for the season.
